About ImpleMentoring

ImpleMentoring - city-to-city support for migrant integration is a mutual learning project between cities in the field of integration governance.

Led by EUROCITIES, the network of major cities in Europe, ImpleMentoring will enable European cities to address implementation gaps in migrant integration policies and practices. It will build on the experience and success of EUROCITIES projects (MIXITIES, DIVE and INTI-Cities) by shifting the focus from peer reviews and standard-setting towards policy implementation guided by standards and evaluation.

ImpleMentoring aims to provide city-to-city support through tailored mentoring schemes in four specific areas:

- enhancing public perception of migration and diversity
- reflecting and managing diversity in public administration and service provision
- activating and enhancing participation in diverse neighbourhoods
- promoting political participation of migrants through local consultative bodies

EUROCITIES Charter on Integrating Cities

The Charter on Integrating Cities harnesses the duties and responsibilities of European cities in their roles as policy makers, service providers, employers and buyers of goods and services to provide equal opportunities for all residents, to integrate migrants, and to embrace the diversity of their populations that is a reality in cities across Europe.
